In speaking of war a few days ago President Harding said "It must not be again." How glad we all are that he has wiped it out forever. Five little words did it.

The nature and habits of a jackass can not be changed by promoting him from a barn to a parlor. George Harvey is the same in the high office of Ambassador to England as he was in the foul den from which his irresponsible utterances came through the medium of his publication that died recently. His speech last week at a London dinner has aroused protests from the national organization known as the Pro-League Republican Independents. Also from a woman's league headed by the wife of the president of Stanford University. The President has been asked to recall him.

CAPT. THOMPSON WRITES ABOUT TUG RIVER SITUATION

Spring, W. Va., May 23, 1921.

Editor News:—
Another week has passed since I wrote of our situation and doings so I shall attempt it again. Things are happening so slowly that I hardly know just what to say. I thought possibly we could say by now that we had wounded 3, captured 12 and things were shaping for real business in the war area but the air is just like other air. I don't miss any of the boys and smell no blood. People are working and from indications I can not see the reason why we are here. Just for the reason that I have nothing of more interest to write, I shall tell you of our experience for the last 24 hours and that will be an index of our movements right along. No other movements exactly like these, but along similar lines.

Sunday morning a Sergeant of the State Police of West Virginia came to me here in our camp and told me that the Captain of the police at their headquarters at New Howard wanted to see me on very urgent business. I started, walking about 5 miles I reached their camp. I found a jolly bunch of about 10 men and 1 with my escort of two men was received royally. Dinner was prepared and enjoyed by all. We were told that a bunch of about 30 men had planned to and would attempt to annihilate the camp of New Howard that night or Monday night and that the attack was to come from the Kentucky side. I returned to camp at about 3:30, secured a guide—a colored man—and just after dark started with a detail of 8 men to a point commanding the situation. In case the attack was started we were to drive in at the rear, the West Virginians were to guard all points on the river and if they attempted to pass were to capture them or else. This was dead easy for it was in a sharp bend of the river and only about three places that could be used in crossing. Along the hill back of the place where the attackers were supposed to operate was a continuous cliff say 50 to 100 feet high and therefore no way to escape except by the right or left or across the river. So you see the National Guards were to flank them and drive or capture and if driven and attempt to cross the river the State Police would get them at the river. No one came; we stayed all night. Going back tonight and I will add to this in the morning and tell you the result.

The colored fellow we used as a guide through the timber said he knew every path and could take us over rather smooth trails to our objective. After reaching it we had climbed over rocks, cliffs and up the steepest mountain I was ever on all wet with sweat and almost out of breath after three miles of this road I asked the guide what he meant when he said he would take us over comparatively smooth trails.

He said: "You see Captain, these all red necks and scabs, they all won't never bristle up to one another and you all hear. Dey all scared of you now. I thought you all wanted to ketch 'em figher in de day for fight, and them dogs is ahead of we all was risin' so much heil I had to fetch you all another way, cose ef them all dogs keep up that noise they all would be awake and hear we all passin by and then you know Cap, nothing would be doin. I could'n stop to 'plain but thought you would take our explanation now." I accepted the explanation.

This guide, a big, black, curly negro—true as steel—stayed with us all night. We were stationed on the side of a steep hill, so steep in fact it was not lying down when our backs were on the ground. We had a lot of fun, hearing witty, funny and silly remarks of each other of the situation and mission. All came in this morning ready for breakfast which consisted of bread, butter, bacon, eggs and potatoes. Yes, and coffee.

Well we have what you might call a "tough fare" but there will be many pleasant memories stored up for future reference, to be talked over among ourselves when it is over and around the family circles to our anxious friends and people at home.

Personally I find no fault with our present situation. I can willingly endure even greater sacrifice if required.

I desire to send greetings to all our acquaintances and friends in the Big Sandy.

D. L. THOMPSON.

Capt. 1st Cav. Ky. N. G.

HELP A CRIPPLED BOY.

There will be a pie social at the Mattie-Cando school house Saturday night, June 4, for the benefit of Ora Travis, who has been a cripple for 7 years, caused by rheumatism. He is the son of Joe Travis of Wilbur. We are trying to raise enough money to send him to the springs. His father isn't able to bear all the expense as he has been paying doctor bills for him for some time. The boy is 16 years of age. We would certainly appreciate the kindness and help from everyone. Girls, bring pies and the boys bring their pocketbooks full of money to help the boy. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

A Chic New White Cloth Oxford

—is embellished with neat strips of black calf.

Not only is the highest type of workmanship displayed by this new Oxford, but it represents the very most recent fashion idea for Summer costumes.

The Cuban heels are self-covered and just the proper height for walking, while the soles are fashioned entirely of Vaughn's white ivory soles—white all the way through. Neat, perforated strips of black calf are used across toe and instep, as well as around top and at heel strip.

While the embellishments are striking, they are not too lavishly employed—just enough to make this model a tasteful part of the correct Sports costume.

CHURCH COLUMN

The Christian Education Drive.

The campaign to raise $23,000.00 for the 91 schools and colleges of the M. E. Church South will reach the practical stage next Sunday. During the week starting at that time the drive for subscriptions will be made in every church in Southern Methodism.

Subscriptions extend over a period of five years, which makes the obligation easy to meet.

Jno. C. C. Mayo College will receive $175,000 from this fund and Morris Harvey College a larger sum. Thus in our own conference the two church schools will be placed on a sound footing.

They will be able to greatly enlarge their facilities and extend their work. Both of these schools have been full and must have greater equipment and larger faculties.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Dr. Charles Fox Anderson on last Sunday morning gave a report of the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention which was held at Chattanooga, Tenn., May 12 to 18. A total of $22,000,000 was given for the different departments of church work during the past year. Southern Baptists have 27,441 churches. During the past convention year there were received by baptism 173,596. The receipts for foreign missions during the past year were $2,840,149. There are 495 missionaries and the convention maintains 12 hospitals. Medical missionary work is emphasized by Baptists. Our convention gave nearly $200,000 for the famine stricken people of Europe and China. The Woman's Missionary Union of the convention paid in cash during the past year $3,115,437.57. The Baptist women of Kentucky of this amount raised $249,556.78. For Home Missions Southern Baptists raised during the past convention year $1,634,458.47. Two hundred and fifty-three churches were organized through the work of the Home Mission Board last year. Other objects were also generously contributed to. The slogan of the convention was Evangelism, which is the last hope of our civilization. Baptists have always stood for liberty of conscience, equal rights to all and special privileges to none, and the forever separation of church and state. Only recently in Washington ground was broken for a great memorial building to Roger Williams and Religious Liberty. President Harding, our first Baptist president, broke the ground for this building. It is a long, long way from a Virginia jail to the White House, but the distance has been traveled. Kentucky Baptists more than exceeded their quota of the Seventy-five million campaign.

Dr. Anderson earnestly requests that every member of the church as well as all Baptists in the city be present on next Sunday morning.

At the 7:30 evening service he will deliver the seventh of his series of lectures to young men. These addresses are helpful to all classes—the old as well as the young.
